

HYDRO-LEK BUSINESS FACILITIES MOVE TO FAREHAM, HAMPSHIRE

Following the acquisition of Hydro-Lek, Saab Seaeye are pleased to announce that the Hydro-Lek business has now been transferred to Fareham and is fully operational.

Effective from 1st January 2016, the combined companies will operate under the Saab Seaeye name. The Hydro-Lek brand will remain and customers can still reach Hydro-Lek sales and operation staff who are now based at Fareham.

“We would like to reassure our valued customers that our services will not be adversely affected by the move – on the contrary, by tapping into Saab Seaeye’s technical and operational expertise, Hydro-Lek’s products and services will be further enhanced,” says Hydro-Lek operations manager, Colin Barton.

Saab Seaeye sees the move bringing greater product content to the company and represents an important step in the company’s growth strategy.

“There is a strong technology synergy,” says Saab Seaeye’s managing director, Jon Robertson. “Manipulators and tools are key elements in the design and function of underwater vehicles and integrating Hydro-Lek into our operation at Fareham means we can fully direct our technological expertise, operational resources and service support towards advancing the Hydro-Lek technology.”

Saab Seaeye is the world’s largest manufacturer of electric ROVs, and now includes Saab’s underwater vehicle range of tethered, autonomous and hybrid underwater vehicle systems for the defence industry.
